Related Art Recently, electronic equipment has been developed in a small size and a light weight. Multilayer ceramic capacitors (MLCCs) have been used in the electronic equipment due to their advantages of small size, light weight, ease of mounting, and large capacity. Multilayer ceramic capacitors usually have a plurality of internal electrode layers and a plurality of dielectric layers alternately stacked, and typically comprise a body portion and a plurality of external electrodes. One end of the body portion is exposed to outside of the multilayer ceramic capacitor, and the external electrodes are formed on the other end of the body portion.

The external electrodes are electrically connected to the internal electrode layers through a conductive material provided inside the body portion (Patent document 1). In the case where the external electrodes are formed on the outer surface of the body portion of a multilayer ceramic capacitor as mentioned above, the end surface
