I've been using Adobe Creative suite since Aladdin was a movie. Photoshop was the best orientated Photo Studio that I have ever used (Win or Mac). I keep liking new version and try to move on not to fall back. However, Lightroom now is quite hard to work and the transition to Photoshop CC is long. As a result, I bought Photoshop alternatives like Affinity Photo and GIMP. This options is Vector artists' choice. The iPad Pro with Pencil is a nice solution for design artists. It is much easier to sketch, manipulate, tweak and perfect designs and graphics on the smaller screen as compared to using a full-size computer screen and mouse. Same here. I have been using LR for years, and after several of the CC models, I've decided to make a move and look for an alternative. I went with Affinity Photo, and I like it quite a bit. The quality is not as good as Photoshop, but for entry level graphic designers (who can't afford Photoshop), this is a great tool. My only complaint is that it's not Mac compatible. The UI is getting a lot better since the latest CC release. Not everything is perfect. My biggest complaint is that once you open a camera roll for your raw images it seems to start slowing down. I realize this is a RAM issue, but I think if they decrease that number it would make the app much faster. The other issue I have is with the animation panel. Im using Elements 12.4.3 and experience some issues when importing to Lightroom 5.2, while I have opened the same project in elements before and was able to succesfully import the project. Im able to see all the RAW images in the project folder, however when I select the images and try to import them into light room all I get is a series of windows displaying progress of importencing, however no images are being imported. I see the import review screen for a few seconds and then the window closes. I have tried loading into a few different projects and all result in the same issues. I would appreciate any help to resolve this issue. Thanks
